

ONE ENDS HIS LIFE; SECOND MAN FAILS

William J. Kelley's Remains Are Taken to Undertaker's.

Thomas Byrnes, Unable to Find Work, Cuts Throat.

The body of William J. Kelley, a prosperous blacksmith who killed himself while in Potomac Park yesterday by firing a bullet in his mouth, was taken from the Emergency Hospital to the undertaking establishment of J. William Lee this morning.

Funeral services will be held there tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock. The Rev. Father Carroll will officiate.

Thomas Byrnes, formerly a real estate dealer in New York, who made an unsuccessful attempt to end his life yesterday by slashing his throat, legs and arms with a razor, is recovering today in the Georgetown University Hospital. The doctors say he will get well.

Second Attempt at Suicide.

Both men sought death late yesterday afternoon, and while Kelley was dying in the Emergency Hospital, Byrnes was trying to kill himself in another part of the city. Both were elderly men and both courted death in conspicuous places. Kelley tried to die about two months ago, by shooting himself in the ellipse back of the White House, almost the identical spot where he fired the fatal shot yesterday.

Kelley was sixty years of age and lived a 21st D street northwest. He is said to have amassed a fortune, and was reported to have been worth $50,000. He is believed to have been suffering from some mental disorder, as he had spoken freely of killing himself.

Attracted by the report of a revolver, Byrnes rushed to the scene, and walked to the banks of Rock Creek. Seeing blood on his clothing, one of the employees of the railway company approached him.

"I've ended it all," Byrnes told him. On the ground was the razor with which he had attempted to kill himself.

Byrnes is believed to have been dependent on business worry. He came to Washington about six months ago, but had failed to obtain employment.

LA FOLLETTE INDORSED BY WISCONSIN VOTERS

The Presidential aspirations of Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin were given enthusiastic approval by the Republican voters of Wisconsin now residing in Washington at a meeting of the Wisconsin Republican Club last night at Pythian Temple.

Representative John J. Esch made the motion to indorse Senator La Follette for the nomination at Chicago, and it was carried with a rousing vote.

Gustav Kusterman, Wisconsin's latest contribution to the House of Representatives, gave an exhibition of his accomplishments and ability as a veracity that was truly refreshing.

Representative William J. Cary, Representative Elmer Addison Morse, B. J. Price, deputy auditor of the Navy Department, and Henry M. Camp, president of the League of Republican State Clubs, also spoke.

PEARSON PUNISHED FOR INSUBORDINATION

For being sarcastic and disrespectful in alluding to a recommendation made with reference to an inspection of a steam gauge, the Lieutenant John A. Pearson, Seventh Cavalry, has been found guilty by a general court-martial at Governor's Island, N. Y., of "disrespect and conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline." He was sentenced to be confined to the limits of his post, Fort Stoen, N. Y., for six months and to receive a public reprimand.

In reviewing the case Gen. Frederick Dent Grant, commanding the Department of the East, said "the reviewing authority is surprised that an officer who has such advantages and service as the accused has enjoyed should have completely overlooked the essential requirements of military subordination and permitted himself to commit the offenses of which he has been convicted."

THAT'S THE ANSWER.

"Why is your husband so irritable at home?" inquired the amazed visitor.

"Because he knows it's safe to be," answered the long-suffering wife.—Exchange.

REGENT FROM ATLANTA ENJOYS FIRST CONGRESS

MRS. GEORGE M. HOPE,
Treasurer of the Atlanta Chapter, D.
A. R., Who Is Attending the Congress.

Mrs. S. W. Foster Elected to Chief Office in January.

Mrs. S. W. Foster, regent of Atlanta Chapter, of Atlanta, Ga., is attending her first Continental Congress in the capacity of regent. Mrs. Foster was elected to the chief office of the chapter January 15, and since that time has worked earnestly for its interests.

The Atlanta Chapter enjoys the distinction of being the only one in the society which actually owns its own home. At the conclusion of the exposition the governor of Massachusetts presented to the chapter Craigie House, which was the Massachusetts building at the exposition. Another interested advocate of the chapter membership presented a lot, and the Georgia chapter is distinctly proud of its acquisition. The Atlanta Chapter celebrated its seventeenth birthday April 15.

Another prominent worker in the D. A. R. interests of the South is Mrs. George M. Hope, treasurer of the Atlanta Chapter. Mrs. Hope was formerly auditor of the chapter, but was recently elected treasurer. She is prominent in Atlanta society, and her husband is general manager of the Life Insurance Company of Vermont.

WEAR MERRY WIDOWS; EVEN UP WITH CO-EDS

SHARON, Pa., April 23.—Sixty male students of Grove City College turned the trick on the co-eds, when they appeared in chapel wearing large Merry Widow hats, thus effectually shutting off the view of the fair maidens who were in the rear of the hall.

The students had attended church Sunday, and could not see the minister on account of the enormous size of some of the hats. One of the young men wrote in a hymn book: "We have seen the ostrich shoot, and would now like to see the minister," and passed it up to the pastor, who read the line, but it had little effect.

The male students decided to give the co-eds some idea of what it is to sit and stare at nothing but a hat, and so wore their immense headgear.

NETO THE PROGRAM FOR FORAKER BILL

President to Be Certain No
Guilty Troops Are Reinstated.

President Roosevelt will see to it that Senator Foraker's bill for the reinstatement of the discharged soldiers of the Twenty-fifth infantry who were dismissed from the army on account of the Brownsville rioting does not become a law. That is, he will prevent it if a veto can do it. This has become known to some of the Administration members of the Senate, and they are using it as one of the reasons why the Foraker bill should not be enacted.

The Foraker bill provides that those members of the discharged battalion shall be re-enlisted who take oath they were in no way concerned in the Brownsville rioting. The Warner bill, which is the Administration measure, provides for the reinstatement of such members of the battalion as are able to satisfy the President they were not participants in the affair and had no knowledge of it. The President wants Congress to enact such legislation as will enable him to restore to the army the men he is convinced are not guilty and know nothing of who the guilty parties are. But he is not willing to return to the service every member of the battalion who takes an oath he was in no way concerned in the rioting and to return him to the service under the provisions of a bill that would in effect hold the President wrong when he discharged the troops without honor.

Under the circumstances these Senators who want to get the Brownsville matter disposed of before the end of this session are saying that the kindest thing that can be done for the discharged soldiers of the Twenty-fifth is to pass the Warner bill. Under its operation it is likely many of the troops would be re-enlisted, or most of those that want to return to service. They point out that to pass the Foraker bill and have the President veto it, leaving no legislation existent on this subject, would certainly not be a kindness to the discharged troops and that as a practical proposition, having in mind the welfare of the men who were dismissed, the best thing to be done is to pass the Warner bill. Senator Foraker in his speech to the Senate disclaimed the idea of having gone into this Brownsville matter for any political reason. Nevertheless the feeling among politicians is that the senator from Ohio would not mind it much if a situation arrived that led to the passage of his bill by Congress and its veto by the President.

PRINCESS CALLED "BABY"

Princess Beatrice of Saxo-Coburg, who is affianced to Prince Alfonso of Bourbon, is a familiar figure in London society. Unlike most British princesses, she is a brunette, and is known in Paris, and has become noted for her exquisite costumes. She goes by the nickname of "Baby," talks well, has a keen sense of humor and is a first rate mimic. Princess Beatrice was twenty-three last April, and has reached a riper age than her sisters, who married at the ages of seventeen and eighteen, respectively.

BRITAIN TO FIGHT SLEEPING SICKNESS

Whole Regions in Africa
Depopulated by Dread Disease.

LONDON, April 23.—The British government has decided to take independent action in the effort to stamp out the "sleeping sickness," which has depopulated whole regions of South Africa. A national "sleeping sickness" bureau is to be established with headquarters in London.

In view of the fact that Dr. Koch, the German scientist who discovered the sickness, is in the United States, some doubt is shown as to the length of time it will be before the new bureau commences active operations. While not affirmed officially it is said that those in charge of the bureau are seeking valuable information from the German scientist before taking up the work as a factor in colonial governmental affairs.

The bureau will be managed by a strong committee and will receive annual grants from the imperial and South African governments. A conference was held recently for an international alliance among countries which have possessions in Africa to unite in the warfare against this disease. Recommendations were put forward that concerted action be taken and a bureau established, but nothing definite came of it. No disease has caused so much destruction to human life in Africa in so short a time as the "sleeping sickness." Since it made its appearance in epidemic form about seven years ago it has decimated the natives in large areas of the Congo Free State. In one province alone it has destroyed 300,000 lives in seven years, leaving only 100,000 human beings alive.

BUTTER CAN STAND ALONE; PHYSICIANS QUIT HOSPITAL

NEW YORK, April 23.—"We won't stand for the butter! It can stand for itself!"

On that platform, which they consider a strong one, six physicians attached to the Long Island College Hospital, in Henry street, Brooklyn, declared a strike, packed up their kits, and walked out. Their defection left 200 patients to the care of only four surgeons, but Dr. Richard E. Shaw, superintendent of the institution, against whom the movement was waged, was seemingly imperturbable.

According to the story of the malcontents, the quality of food provided for them in the institution lately has been far from satisfactory, but the butter is the chief offender.

These meals are always ready; and what do you know that's so good?

You will never bake beans at home again when you once learn the difference between yours and Van Camp's.

Note how nutty our beans are—how mealy. None are browned, none are broken; all are baked alike.

And note what a delicious blend we get. It comes from baking the beans, the tomato sauce and the pork all together.

It isn't your fault, but you cannot begin to bake beans as we bake them

You lack the facilities. Beans must be baked in a very fierce heat, else they are not digestible.

We bake ours 90 minutes at 245 degrees.

Then we bake in live steam. That's why our beans don't brown, don't burst. That is why they are all baked alike, and baked well. That's why they are mealy, yet nutty.

Van Camp's pork and beans baked with tomato sauce

Then you can't get the beans that we get, for ours are selected by hand from the choicest beans grown.

We pay for them seven times what some beans would cost.

Then our tomatoes are ripened on the vines—not in shipment. They are picked when the juice fairly sparkles. That gives to our sauce the zest which you don't get in other sauce.

The millions of people who know Van Camp's never want home-baked beans

We have spent 47 years in learning how to best prepare this dish. Is it any wonder we know?

Don't judge Van Camp's by some other brands that are cheapened at every point. It pays to get the best in beans, because your people will eat them more frequently; eat them in place of meat.

And beans are Nature's choicest food—84 per cent nutriment.
